SISTER ELESHA SCOTT

Elesha Scott is a visionary who uses her voice and vision to impact generations, transform lives, empower communities, and build effective systems. She uses her passion for strategy and curriculum design to create educational experiences that facilitate multigenerational empowerment and engage individuals in personal and spiritual growth. Visionary. Leader. Speaker. Influencer. Educator. Worship Leader. Musician. Strategist. Creative. Coach. Consultant. Entrepreneur. Wife. Mother. Sister. Granddaughter. Encourager. Friend. Elesha's desire is to honor and fulfill God's purpose and calling on her life and inspire others to do the same. From a 13-year-old musician and worship leader to an entrepreneur who hosts faith-based multigenerational conferences and events, Elesha continues to impact her community by simply being a bridge and sharing the love of Jesus. Elesha is the founder of the Don't Lose Yourself Conference, one of her signature events, where she creates spaces for believers to flourish in their love for God, love for themselves, and love for their neighbor. Through multigenerational experiences, she empowers individuals to pursue identity, purpose, unity, and service that is anchored in God's love. Her community encourages wholeness and spiritual growth that is grounded in God, motivated by love, refined by relationships, and united by their stories. Elesha has a contagious drive to educate and empower. She is a graduate of the University of Georgia where she earned a degree in Mathematics Education and became a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. She is the founder and education consultant for Impact Educators, LLC where she coaches educators on instructional strategies that facilitate positive learning environments, foster community, strengthen collaboration, prioritize student voice, and promote rigorous thinking. Her experience as a former math teacher, educational leader, and now an education consultant contribute to her outlook on the impact that education has on teachers and students. She believes faith and education can positively change the trajectory of families in her community. She hopes her legacy is one that bridges generational gaps, educates educators, inspires innovative collaboration between faith-based communities, and empowers individuals to walk confidently in their God-given purpose.
